This history is the culmination of plans made at a Stevens family gathering at the home of Benjamin McClellan Stevens in Richton, Miss., on July 4, 1956. At that time an organization was effected for the purpose of promoting future family reunions and to bring up to date the history written many years ago by Clara Pardue. Each family was asked to submit its own family history and with the exception of minor editing, it is printed as it was given to the family historian.

We are indebted to many persons for assistance given in the preparation of this history, and we express our appreciation to each of them. We, however, would like to give special mention to that member of each family who collected the information for individual families and to Osmond S. Lewis of Hattiesburg who wrote the history and reminiscences of Chauncey Bigelow.

We state further that this history is recorded that members of the family now living and generations yet unborn may know and be challenged to continue the rich heritage left them by their forefathers.

We dedicate this document to the loving memory of "Cousin Clara" Pardue in appreciation of her love and devotion to the family and her efforts in recording and preserving the early history of the family.

This, the 1971 History of the Stevens Family, is a revised and updated edition of the first history compiled by "Cousin Clara" and the 1961 edition compiled by my wife, Arlean. We give due credit to members of the families supplying the information on each branch of the family and to Fannie Stevens Kelly and Arlean Nicholson Stevens for its compilation. We hope the younger members of the family will appreciate their wonderful heritage and shall preserve its history for future generations.

BENJAMIN McCLELLAN STEVENS
— July 4, 1971

In her colorful and informative "Reminiscences of CHAUNCEY BIGELOW STEVENS," his granddaughter, Clara Pardue, traces the genealogy of the Stevens Family to Thomas Stevens who died in Stamford, Conn. in 1658. One of his five sons was Benjamin who was granted a house lot by the town of Stamford for services against the common enemy in 1676 (King Phillips War of 1676).

In 1680 Benjamin Stevens, third son of Thomas Stevens, moved to "Hop Grounds" now in the town of Bedford, N. Y., but then claimed as a part of the town of Stamford, Conn. Sometime between 1700 and 1710 he moved with his four sons to Dansbury, Conn. One of his sons was Nathaniel Stevens who married Abigail Barnum, daughter of Thomas Barnum. They had six sons and two daughters. The youngest sons were John and Ezra.

John Stevens married Lydia Barnum, daughter of Benjamin Barnum and granddaughter of Richard Barnum, one of the eight original settlers of Dansbury in 1684. Her sister, Ann Barnum, married Ezra Stevens, brother of John. John Stevens died in 1788, leaving his widow, Lydia, and nine children: Lucy, Silas, Olive, Lydia, Paul, Abijah, John, Patience and BENJAMIN. Benjamin born 1760 at Lee, Mass. married Sarah Bigelow. In the vital statistics at Lee, Mass. are the following records of their children: Susan, born 1785; Marcy, born 1787; Lucy, born 1789; Sarah, born 1791; CHAUNCEY BIGELOW, born 1793; Benjamin, born 1795. In the church records is recorded the death of Benjamin Stevens in 1832, aged 72 years. He was one of the prominent men of the town. He was repeatedly Fence Viewer, Tithing Man, and Surveyor of Highways. According to the plan of the old meeting-house, his pew was No. 34, half-way up the broad aisle, which in New England was significant of aristocracy.

CHAUNCEY BIGELOW STEVENS was educated in the school at Lee, Mass. After going through that school he went to Lynn, Mass. He was a good Latin scholar. He studied medicine, which in those days of little surgery (except the bleeding of patients for almost any ailment) was not much more than applied botany. There was for many years in the possession of his family one of his textbooks on medicine by Gunn, illustrated with pictures of trees, plants and flowers, giving their medicinal qualities and how to prepare and administer them.

Early in life he left home and located in Ohio where he married Elizabeth Jackson, an aunt of Stonewall Jackson. She lived but a few years, leaving a son, Edward. Soon after her death he decided to move South. As was the custom in those pioneer days he made the trip on a flat boat down the Ohio and Mississippi rivers to New Orleans and from there to Biloxi, Miss. Here he taught school for several months. Biloxi was a trading place for all South Mississippi, and it was there he met Bryant Ferrill of Jackson County, who induced him to go to Ferrill's neighborhood and teach the ten children of Bryant Ferrill and those of his neighbors. He had taught there but a year or two when he asked permission to marry Bryant Ferrill's third daughter, Lucy. This being refused the couple eloped and were married at Pascagoula, Miss. March 20, 1825, and went to Tangipahoa, La. to live. Here he taught school until after the birth of his son William. He then moved to Mobile, Ala., where he had a contract to survey, fill and level Government and other streets. His oldest daughter, Emily, was born and went to school in Mobile.

Some time later C. B. Stevens bought a farm at Augusta, Miss., the county site of Perry County, at that time a promising inland village where the United States Government land office was located. Again he taught school, not only as a means of livelihood, but to educate his own children as well. In laying emphasis on education he was true to the family history and tradition. He was a man of great religious faith, a loyal Methodist and strictly kept the rules laid down in the Discipline. He was a great student of the Bible and of great literature. For twenty or thirty years before his death he was practically blind and enjoyed being read to by members of his family. When his granddaughter, Clara Pardue, would spend her vacations with her grandparents she would read to him many hours at a time. In these, reading the Bible came first.

During his later years while still living in his home, one mile south of Augusta, it was one of his greatest pleasures to have his son Benjamin come every morning with the newspapers and read them to him. As long as his eyesight permitted he was fond of cutting wood and would diligently split a certain amount every morning regardless of the weather, and in this way "kept ahead of the fire" as he expressed it.

His temperament was genial, happy and optimistic. He never exhibited any ill humor. He enjoyed a joke and was interesting in conversation. He was always clean in his speech, kindhearted, and charitable. After his eyesight failed him and both he and his wife had grown old, his favorite son, Benjamin, then residing in Augusta, insisted upon their moving to his home. The industry and independence of the Irish wife delayed these plans until a spring freshet from Leaf River (near the banks of which he lived) drove them from their log house to the home of his son on the hill. He and his wife never returned to their old home but remained for many years as beloved members of Benjamin's household. His son built for them a "new house" near his own. There the old couple received every attention possible. The grandchildren took delight in waiting on them and enjoyed the Mother Goose rhymes and funny stories their grandfather would tell them, for he loved and was patient with them all.

During the troublous times of the Civil War his sons volunteered and served in the Confederate Army. One of them, Richard, died in the service. When Benjamin was away fighting for his country and his wife was troubled and distressed, his faith was to her a strong rock to lean upon. He would often say: "The Lord has blessed me and He will bless my posterity." (The years since that declaration of faith was made have abundantly fulfilled the high expectation he had regarding his posterity. What a rich heritage for the Stevens Family to cherish! What a record of faith and loyalty to the highest and best so many of them have made in their own right! We do well on this Freedom's Day to memorialize those who served so well and unselfishly their day and generation, and made such a valuable contribution to the cause of freedom.)

The wife of C. B. Stevens, Lucy Ferrill, died at the home of her son Benjamin, February 9, 1880, and he followed her three years later, March 26, 1883, age 90 years and 27 days. Both are buried in the family cemetery which at that time was in the yard of the two-story combination church and lodge that stood beside the highway at the end of the lane which led some hundred yards to the home of Benjamin.

There are many still living who remember that old home. One of the descendants, Felder Cook, and his brother-in-law, Osmond Lewis, were walking along near the old place when Felder, stopped, took off his hat and said "Osmond, we are on holy ground." What a marvelous appreciation he had of those gone before and from whom he inherited so many of those traits of character and love of the beautiful things of life that enriched his wonderful life!

The children of Chauncey Bigelow Stevens were: Edward, son of his first wife, Elizabeth Jackson. This son was left with his mother's family when Chauncey B. Stevens moved South. After the second marriage the boy was put aboard a sailing vessel to come at his father's request to New Orleans. He landed there during an epidemic of yellow fever, and when a belated letter was received telling of his sailing, and the father hastened to New Orleans to meet him, the boy was not to be found. It is supposed that he contracted and died of yellow fever.

There were born of the second marriage the following:

The information contained herein was collected by his granddaughter, Clara Pardue, who gave much time and wrote many letters in searching out these facts. Old courthouses, churches and cemeteries of New England have yielded up from their rich stores the story of the Stevens family at her behest, and the result is a labor of love which she gives to her relatives."

CAPTAIN BENJAMIN STEVENS

Benjamin, third child and son of Chauncey Bigelow and Lucy Ferrill Stevens, was born near the site of the old Jackson County Courthouse, presently near Lucedale, Miss. on July 2, 1830. He was married in 1855 to Lorena Annette Breland, daughter of Hiram and Lucy Moody Breland, who was born Sept. 26, 1839 at Old Washington, Greene County, Mississippi. They settled in Augusta, Mississippi, where they reared a family of ten children, six sons and four daughters. At the beginning of the War Between the States he joined the Confederate Army, leaving his wife and three daughters, the eldest of whom was five years old, in the care of his elderly parents and faithful slaves.

He served as captain in a calvary unit under General Nathan Bedford Forrest. His six sons born after his return from the war were named for Confederate Generals as follows: William Forrest, Joseph Johnston, Charles Zollicoffer, Chauncey Hardee, Hiram Stuart and John Morgan. The daughters were: Candice Elizabeth, Emily Josephine, Sarah Ann and Pearle Brunetta. They had one foster son, Delma Wolvin.

Captain Stevens was interested in the education of his children and at the time when there were no public schools for them to attend, he employed teachers who lived in their home as members of his family. All of his sons attended college and became successful men in their chosen professions. There were among them, one doctor, two business men and three lawyers, one of which, John Morgan, became a member of the Supreme Court of the State of Mississippi.

He was a Methodist and quoting from "The History of Methodism in Mississippi" by W. B. Jones we read, "When C. F. Gillespie arrived at his new charge he called at the home of Captain Ben Stevens, the leading Methodist in the Augusta community." He lived most of his life in Augusta where he developed extensive interests in farming, cattle, timber and business. He established a store in 1867 for which supplies were brought from Mobile and Hattiesburg by wagons and mules, until the railroad came through New Augusta where he later moved his store.

At one time he and his wife moved to Hattiesburg, Miss. to a home which now stands at corner of Third and Main Street, so as to be near their children, many of whom lived there at that time. They soon became homesick for their old home and moved back to New Augusta where they lived until his death on Oct. 17, 1908. His wife died Nov. 11, 1910 and both are buried in the Stevens' Family Cemetery which he established adjoining the old cemetery at Augusta where his parents are buried.

In the early days of the War between the States he joined the Confederate Army where he served as a Private in Company D of the Ninth Regiment of Mississippi Calvary CSA.

In the early 1900's he operated a retail grocery store in Mobile, Ala. at 961-63 Dauphin St., later opening a country general store at Evanston, Miss., where he maintained a summer home that he called Piney Crest. The newly built Mobile, Jackson and Kansas R.R. (now the G.M. & O.) passed through Evanston, which was a "flag stop". He also owned general mercantile stores at Wilma, Ala. and Lucedale, Miss.

John Bigelow was a member and Deacon in the St. Francis Street Baptist Church and with his family faithfully attended all services. He was a Christian gentleman of the old school, kind and tolerant in his manner, "a family man" in his habits. His children have early memories of Sunday afternoon walks with him and his practice of "tipping his derby" as he passed friends on the street. There are memories, too, of visits to the Protestant Orphan Asylum on Dauphin St., the green houses of the "Little Brothers of the Poor" and an order of Nuns for whom he had high regard. There is no recollection of his showing any intolerance of Jews, Catholics or negroes. He was a lover of music and flowers, of dogs and cats. There were always pets in the house, a garden and chickens being raised in the yard. In Mobile he also had a cow and a horse and in Evanston, our country home, there were several of these animals — sometimes thought of as pets by the children.
